About St. Jude

- Families never receive a bill from St. Jude for treatment, travel, housing or food – because all a family should worry about is helping their child live.
- Treatments invented at St. Jude have helped push the overall childhood cancer survival rate from 20% when the hospital opened in 1962 to more than 80% today.
- Because the majority of St. Jude funding comes from individual contributors, St. Jude has the freedom to focus on what matters most – saving kids regardless of their financial situation.

Meet Katie

age 11, brain cancer

Last year, after Katie's parents learned she suffered from a type of brain cancer called medulloblastoma, they jumped online to research the best places for her care. St. Jude popped up at the top of every search. St. Jude is one of the few pediatric hospitals in the nation that offers proton therapy, which provides the benefits of traditional radiation with fewer side effects. "We thought, 'Let's go to people who know children, who know brain cancer,'" says Katie's dad. Katie's treatment at St. Jude included proton therapy and chemotherapy. Katie is an affectionate and bubbly girl who wants to be a historian. Abraham Lincoln is her hero, and she loves learning about the Civil Rights movement.
